Atlanta Child Murder Trial Opens

By JOE GILYARD

The murder trial of 23-year-old Wayne B. Williams, a defendant in two of Atlanta's notorious child murder cases, opened Monday under tight security in the Fulton County Superior Court.

Williams, a pudgy free-lance photographer with ties to Atlanta's gay community, is charged with murdering Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of the 28 young blacks whose deaths have been investigated by a special task force over the last two years. Security for Williams has been tight. He has been kept in an isolation cell since June. Ten shotgun-toting deputies were on hand when Williams emerged from the jail to be taken to the courthouse. Everyone entering the courthouse was directed through a metal detector and deputies did not allow anyone on the building's fourth floor until 45 minutes before the trial began. Nearly 900 Atlanta residents were summoned to be questioned as potential jurors. The first 47 prospective jurors all said that they had heard of Williams. Jury selection is expected to take several days. Superior Court Judge Clarence Cooper dismissed two potential jurors who said they had formed opinions about the case. Cooper also dismissed 17 others who said they would suffer a hardship if required to serve during

4 SUSPECTS CHARGED

Cops Crack 4 Unsolved Black Cases Amidst 1981's Outbreak Of Murders

Columbus homicide detectives filed charges last week against four men in connection with four of 1981's previously unsolved murders. All of the victims were black men, as were three of the suspects.

Charges stemming from the 1978 murder of a local man have also been directed against one of the suspects.

By the time all charges had been filed on Wednesday, two men were in police custody, one remained at large, and one was being held in another state, police said. The charges represented a big break for police in a year that has seen at least 55 blacks rubbed out in the city.

Saturday, Dec. 19
Police arrested John D. Horton, 35, at his home in Newark and charged him with the Nov. 29 shotgun slaying of Clarence Walker Jr.

Columbus homicide squad detectives, Licking County sheriff's deputies, and Newark police combined to make the arrest at the white suspect's home at about 4:30 a.m. Horton was arraigned last Monday on charges of aggravated murder, according to police, and is being held without bond in the Franklin County Jail.

Sgt. John Shawkey of homicide said Horton confessed to killing Walker. Shawkey said some people that knew Walker fingered Horton.

"Some acquaintances of the victim indicated the two men had made contact with each other at least one month before Walker's death," Shawkey said.

According to detectives, Horton said he shot Walker because Walker had stolen $3,000 to $4,000 worth of marijuana from him. Shawkey said it is not known whether the two men had a drug-related relationship with each other in the past.

A 12-gauge shotgun was used to murder Walker in the kitchen of the victim's residence at 1361 E. Livingston Ave. The 23-year-old man was shot in the back.

In another case, police filed aggravated murder charges against two men for the Sept. 20 shooting death of Calvin White, 29.

Shawkey said he believes Woods is still in Columbus.

White, a resident of 1131 E. 23rd St., was discovered slain in the front seat of his car. He had been shot once in the chest and left to die in a field just south of Delbert Road, police said.

Police believe robbery was the motive of the slaying and witnesses have stated that White was carrying a large sum of money when last seen.

Was Driver Murdered?

An autopsy has been scheduled to discover what caused the death of a 35-year-old Indianapolis truck driver whose body was found sitting in the doorway of an industrial building on N. 20th St. early Tuesday.

Until the exact cause of death has been determined, the death of William McKnight, a driver for United Parcel Service, will be treated as a homicide, police said.

McKnight's tractor-trailer rig was found bogged down in a muddy field about nine blocks from where his body was found, police reported.

The body was found at about 8 a.m. in a doorway at rear of 915 N. 20th St. An employee of the Superior Plating Co., which occupies the building, found the body and notified police.

DR. JOHN H. ROSEMOND

Distinguished Public Servant Leaves Office After 12 Years

BY RICHARD PAYNE

Mixed emotions poured through Dr. John Rosemond when on Dec. 31 he vacated the Columbus City Council seat he had held since 1969. His numerous contributions as a local official were gratifying, but at the same time he leaves with the feeling that more needed to be accomplished.

Described in political circles as determined but not extremist, it is hardly expected that he would be satisfied.

Interviewed by The CALL & POST at his Near Eastside medical office, Dr. Rosemond expounded on his local political career.

Rosemond, 63, was born in Jacksonville, Fla. He was first acquainted with Columbus in the mid 40s while stationed at the then Lockbourne (Rickfennacker) Air Force Base as a navigator-bombardier. Later, after having obtained M.D. Degrees from Howard University, he entered the private practice of medicine in Columbus in 1953.

"I got into politics in an indirect manner. I've always liked to do things I thought were helpful to people and helpful to my said. The family practitioner served as Life Membership and Freedom Fund Chairman of the Ohio Conference of Branches of the NAACP. "This was an organization that I thought was specifically trying to address the concerns of black people."

Rosemond actively pursued through volunteer avenues the means to make the city's officialdom recognize the needs of the black community. Needs he said he saw on both the individual level when examining impoverished patients, and the needs he understood from the collective black population.

participation included being named to the board of the Central Ohio Council of Boy Scouts and chosen for the Development Committee for Greater Columbus. The then mayor, M.E. Sensenbrenner, contacted Rosemond and asked him to serve on the Mayor's Committee for Good Government.

"I was asked to get into politics. A group of black citizens, Democrats mainly, came to me and asked me to be a candidate for council," Rosemond said. One group in particular, he said, was called the Concerned Citizens and was headed by Attorney Napoleon Bell.

The undertaking Rosemond committed himself to was something that had not been done in this city since before the turn of the century: that being electing a black to council. The significance of electing a black to public office in 1969 -- the peak of that period's civil rights movement, has impacted this city greatly even today.

"I'm the first black councilman elected on a city-wide basis. There was a fellow (black) named Poindexter who was on council in the 1800s, about 1890. At that time they had a differ-bus. They had nine wards and two councilmen elected from each ward for a total of 18 councilmen."

In 1914, they had a charter change which stated that from then on they would have only seven councilmen, and all seven would be elected at-large."

Even after one black had been elected to council, Rosemond said, it had actually gotten more difficult to elect black public officials due to the 1914 charter change. He said that was because black voters represented only a token percentage of Columbus population.

Rosemond's nomination and his election in a true sense drew the map that has led local black candidates into public office. To win the election was both a victory for Rosemond and the black community. "It gave me a great deal of satisfaction to win the election. An election is just like any other race -- you expend a lot of energy, and then if you win there's a certain amount of excitement and exhilaration."

"I think that the other thing that was impressive about it was that along with it the black community got a sort of lift. We did it. The

Columbus Contractor Chosen For U.S. Mission To Africa

Next month, Columbus businessman Lewis R. Smoot Sr. will take part in a joint U.S. government business trade and investment mission to Africa that will work at developing that relationship.

Smoot is president and chief executive officer of the Sherman R. Smoot Co., Inc., 907 N. 23rd St., a black-owned construction firm founded by his father, Sherman R. Smoot, in Charleston, W. Va., in 1946. The company moved to Columbus in 1963 and has gained national recognition for its construction projects.

Smoot will be one of 70 people on the mission Jan. 8-21 to the West African countries of Cameroon, Ivory Coast, Nigeria and Morocco. It will be headed by Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and Agriculture Secretary John LEWIS R. SMOOT, SR.

"I'm very pleased I was selected and I hope that if I accomplish nothing else I will come back with a better understanding of the economic, as well as the political relationship the United States is developing with Africa," Smoot said.

The mission will involve 12-hour workdays and high level meetings with African business and government leaders.

The government's decision to send the mission came as a result of the economic summit meeting with developing nations President Reagan and other U.S. officials attended at Cancun, Mexico, in October.

Once the group returns to the U.S., it will be debriefed and plans will be made for the necessary follow-up with the nations. Smoot said that according to a list of participants released by the Commerce Department, he appears to be the only businessman from Ohio selected for the

ICC And Howard U. Announce Agreement On Legal Internships

The Interstate Commerce Commission and the Howard University School of Law have announced the beginning of a legal internship program.

Under the program to begin in January, upper division law students from the university will be placed within the bureaus and offices of the commission for a semester. Each student will be assigned to work with a commission attorney and will be fully involved in the agency's activities.

The idea of an internship program grew out of hearings held earlier this year by Commissioner Reginald E. Gilliam, Jr., and former Commissioner Marcus Alexis. The hearings, held in several cities, focused on the needs of black and other minority carriers. Gilliam said, "It was apparent at the hearing that a crucial need for minority carriers was the formation of cadre of trained transportation specialists; lawyers, operations professionals, traffic managers. Witness after witness called our attention to this lack of professionals."

In a subsequent visit to the Howard University campus, Gilliam raised the idea for a training program with Dean Wiley Branton of the law school.

"Dean Branton was convinced that such a program could and should be established," said Gilliam, "and that plus the support of Chairman Taylor gave us the impetus to formulate the program."

Gilliam is quick to point

LEGAL INTERNSHIPS were the subject of a recent agreement between Howard University Law School and the U.S. Interstate Commerce Commission. Under the agreement, Howard law students will work for one semester in selected ICC offices to gain first hand experience in the inner workings of the federal bureaucracy. Reginald E. Gilliam Jr. (second from left in photo), who is the second black commissioner in the ICC's 94-year history, conceived the program. Shown above at a meeting to iron out the final details are, from left to right, Clyde Hart, Gilliam's attorney and advisor; Gilliam; Dean Wiley Branton, of Howard Law School; and ICC Chairman Reese Taylor.

out that this program is only a beginning. "The possibility exists that other law schools and area universities would join this effort. There are many forms that this internship program could take: seminars by commission personnel to business classes, transportation courses in local schools, and business and accounting students entering the program are just a few ideas that may come to fruition. With hard work and dedication, I believe the intern program would be a model for many years."

Gilliam is the second black commissioner in the ICC's 94-year history and is the second youngest commissioner ever appointed. He was appointed to the ICC by former President Carter in 1980 after serving as counsel to U.S. Senator John Glenn (D-Ohio) for five years.

Conservation Corps Furloughs Rescinded By Natural Resources

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources (ODNR) announced last week that the Department has rescinded the Dec. 11 furlough of 117 enrollees in the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC). The intended furloughs were a result of the elimination of federal funding from the U.S. Department of Interior and the Forest Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The cancellation of the furloughs was made in anticipation of favorable action by the Controlling Board on Jan. 4. At that time the board will hear ODNR's request for funds to continue the program at current levels, said Donald Anderson, deputy director of administration for ODNR.

ODNR has requested funds allocated to the Controlling Board in the state budget for the purpose of preventing layoffs.

"This is an important program for the young, unemployed people of Ohio. It affords them an opportunity to learn technical skills and practice good work habits while contributing to society through vital conservation work," said Anderson.

Urban Homesteading Lottery Applications Now Being Accepted

The Columbus Department of Development's Urban Homesteading Program has announced it is now accepting applications for Phase 2 of the Urban Homesteading Lottery. Applications to participate in the drawing for the one dollar houses will be accepted through Jan. 22.

The lottery will be held in March, and is expected to include from 20-30 houses purchased by the city from the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) with funds from a Homesteading Program Grant.

A person who wins one of the homes must agree to rehabilitate and maintain the property at least at city code level and live in it for four years before gaining clear title.

Columbus Homesteading Program has participated with HUD since the inception of the Homestead Demonstration Program and has received more than $3 million dollars for the acquisition of property.

Individuals interested in applying to win one of the homes should contact the Urban Homesteading Office at 140 Marconi Blvd., 7th Floor, or call 222-7336 for further information.

Black Businessman Opens Third Wendy's

For Columbus businessman Willie James Pace, 1981 has been a good year. In late 1980 Pace resigned his behind-the-desk management position at Wendy's International in order to open his own Wendy's restaurant as the company's first minority franchisee. In only a little over a year, Pace has put his six years of experience in the quick-service restaurant industry to work and built one of the nation's fastest growing Wendy's franchises. Yesterday Pace opened his third Wendy's restaurant in Columbus with ribbon-cutting ceremonies attended by officials from Wendy's International and Columbus City Councilman Jerry Hammond.

The new store, located at 2335 E. Fifth Ave. marks the opening of the Columbus area's thirty-ninth Wendy's location since R. David Thomas, now Chairman of the Board of Wendy's International, Inc., opened the first Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburgers store here in 1969.

Pace first joined Wendy's in 1974 and was promoted through the company's franchise operations department being named Director of Franchise Operations in April, 1979.

For most people, serving in such a capacity for the nation's fastest-growing hamburger chain would mean contentment and success. Pace, however, chose to leave his corporate level position in order to become the owner of his own Wendy's restaurant.

According to Pace, "I guess I wanted the opportunity to run my own business and prove to myself that I had what it takes to succeed in a very competitive industry."

Pace's ability to succeed can certainly not be doubted. On December 2, 1980, Pace opened his first Wendy's restaurant at 1480 W. Broad St. as the nation's first store owner under Wendy's Minority Franchise Program. Only 10 months later, Pace was cutting the ribbon to open his second Wendy's restaurant at 666 E. Fifth Ave. Last night Pace again took scissors in hand and cut the ribbon on his third store opening this year.

In ceremonies to officially open the new store, Pace and Councilman Hammond both commented on the importance of minority business growth in the Columbus area, and the need for more incentives such as the Wendy's Minority Franchise Program.

Jobs For Youth Crusade Launched By Leon Sullivan

The end is not yet, declared the Rev. Leon Sullivan, the fiery, outspoken pastor of Zion Baptist Church, Philadelphia, as he prepared for a nationwide swing from coast to coast appealing to 5,000 business leaders to make youth job pledges.

Referring to the Biblical expression that tells believers "to endure to the end," Sullivan, founder and chairman of the Opportunities Industrialization Centers of America (OIC/A) job training network, announced to his national industrial advisors his Youth Jobs Crusade plan. He asked his business advisors to meet and mobilize small and medium-sized businesses to join in a private sector initiative that will bring some hope to the unemployed youths of America.

"We must invest in America's future, even while we endure the pain of the present economic recession," Sullivan said. Outlining a six-month plan that will involve the Industrial Advisory Councils of the local OIC affiliates as well as OIC volunteer leaders in more than 100 communities, Sullivan spoke with deep feeling about the crisis in federal funding and the need to have private sector initiatives move as quickly as possible to bridge the gap. Sullivan said: The business leaders who put President Reagan in office have been saying, 'let's have less government; the private sector can do it better.' Well, there's their chance. The performance of business in areas like youth unemployment and training has, up to now, been disappointing. Only one big company in 10 contributes significantly to this area. But there are 13 million companies in this country and if only one percent would hire one youth, we will have gone a long way towards solving the problem. I am beginning the Jobs for Youth Crusade to launch a national campaign to put OIC in the hearts and minds of America."

Rev. Sullivan pointed out, "not only is the survival of the existing OIC's at stake, but the stabilization of our communities, reduction of crime, and the providing of an alternative to hopelessness and despair compels me to undertake this task."

Pastor Makes Yearly Trip To Holy Land As Tour Guide

By JANICE D. HAMLET

During this season of Advent, thousands of people visit Bethlehem and other historic places in the Holy Land to see where Jesus Christ was born, crucified and ascended into heaven. The Rev. A.C. Brogdon, pastor of Mt. Vernon AME Church, 750 Mt. Vernon Ave. makes the journey to the Holy Land every year as a tour guide.

This year Rev. Brogdon is celebrating his 21st year with the Mt. Vernon Church. In an interview with The CALL & POST, the Rev. Brogdon said it is unusual for a Methodist minister to stay at one church for a long period of time. But he said he has been very fortunate and has not moved around as other pastors of Methodist churches have had to do.

Before coming to Columbus, Rev. Brogdon pastored a church in Huntington, W. Va. for 9 years and a church in Weriton, W. Va. for 13 years.

"The secret for staying in

one place for a long period of time is to love, respect and get along with your congregation," he said. "We have no bitterness or arguments here at Mt. Vernon. We treat each other like one big family," he continued.

The church is also celebrating its 95th year.

In discussing his trip to the Holy Land, Rev. Brogdon said he works as a tour host for Wholesale Tours, Inc. based in New York. He takes groups to the Holy Land and points out places Jesus walked and lived. Rev. Brogdon said he has been to the Holy Land four times.

"We tour the city of Nazareth where Jesus grew up; and climb Calvary's Mountain where he was crucified. We also walk inside the garden tomb where his body laid," Brogdon said.

The reverend said the group also crosses the Sea of Galilee where they are reminded of the incident where Jesus calmed the stormy sea to protect his disciples. They sat on the mountain where Jesus taught the Beatitudes. They also get the opportunity to visit the Garden of Gethsemane where Jesus often prayed.

"One can actually feel a sense of closeness to Jesus there," he said.

In describing the feeling he experienced seeing these places of Biblical interest, Rev. Brogdon said, "It is the greatest feeling. I can't describe it. When we went inside of the tomb where Jesus laid, it was a feeling that is unexplainable."

Rev. Brogdon gives talks on the Biblical history of all the places the tour groups visit.

Each group Rev. Brogdon takes ranges in number from 15 to 27. His next tour is scheduled for March.

Persons interested in making a trip to the Holy Land with Rev. Brogdon should contact him at 253-2357.

"According to Rev. Brogdon, all will be spiritually richer from having made the trip."

Equal Employment Rule Roll Back By FCC Is Targeted By 48 Groups

Plans to roll back the Federal Communications Commission's equal employment rules were protested by 48 organizations in a statement released by the United Church of Christ's Office of Communication.

"With the current recession and resulting high unemployment of minorities and women, FCC protection of employment rights is doubly needed," the statement asserts. "We object to any repeal of Commission rules that ensure equal employment opportunity in broadcasting, when stepped-up vigilance on behalf of minority and women's groups is called for."

The protest letter is being delivered to all FCC commissioners, who are expected to hold hearings on the EEO regulations this week. In addition to the United Church's communication office, signers include the denomination's Board for Homeland Ministries and Commission for Racial Justice; the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; National Association of Colored People-Legal Defense and Educational Fund; National Urban League; United Auto Workers; United Steelworkers of America; American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees and the Communications Commission of the National Council of Churches.

While stating that there is "much remaining to be done," the letter notes that since EEO rules were adopted by the FCC in 1970, there has been a significant increase in the number of women and racial minorities employed by broadcast stations, most importantly in upper-level jobs. Such results, the group claims, "affirm the importance of the commission's and of the effectiveness of existing commission EEO policies."

"We call upon the commission to reaffirm its commitment to policies which assure the broadest possible representation of all groups in society in employment in mass communications," the statementations describe as "cause for grave concern" a direction from the Office of Management and Budget to the FCC which, they reveal, "calls for the elimination of key affirmative action policies of the FCC."

The groups also score proposals circulating within the FCC to expand the exemption for stations so that those with fewer than 15 employees would not be required to file affirmative action reports and to change requirements for filing employment forms from annually to every two years. These actions, they charge, "would seriously weaken existing nondiscrimination employment rules."

The St. Mark's Community Health Center, located in the lower level of St. Mark's Lutheran Church at 1218 Dennison Ave., will be closed Dec. 28 through 31 for remodeling.

Patients in need of attention during the remodeling period should call 294-2609 to make special arrangements.

"These changes will result in a more pleasant atmosphere for our patients (and staff)," said Peg Curtin, administrator. The center is one of six funded by the Columbus Board of Health, which provided $15,000 for the renovation.

Most of the religious, educational, labor, civil liberties and civil rights groups signing the letter supported the original petition to the FCC, filed by the UCC agencies in 1967, which asked it to issue EEO rules.

Health Center To Remodel

Patients in need of attention during the remodeling period should call 294-2609 to make special arrangements.

"These changes will result in a more pleasant atmosphere for our patients (and staff)," said Peg Curtin, administrator.

The center is one of six funded by the Columbus Board of Health, which provided $15,000 for the renovation.

Water Food

Many foods have a high percentage of water. An egg is about 74 percent water; a watermelon, 92 percent; and a piece of beefsteak, about 73 percent.

Worth More

Paper is a very expensive product and is becoming increasingly precious.

Miller Named Chairman Of Human Services Commission

George Miller, vice-chairperson and community representative to Metropolitan Human Services Commission, will assume the chairmanship of MHSC in January. Miller replaces Robert Lazarus, who resigned the position at the December 17 Commission meeting to assume the presidency of United Way of Franklin County.

Miller heads the Departments of Insurance and Public Administration at Columbus Technical Institute, and he owns and operates Ideal Beauty Supply Co., 1726 Cleveland Ave.

He commented that MHSC is a vital force in planning, researching and aiding organizations in determining the directions to take in human services. "The Commission has the capability, the interest, and the commitment to give this assistance," he added, "and it's good to be a part of an organization that can accept this challenging role." Miller holds two undergraduate degrees, a B.S. in Distributive Education and a B.A. in Social Science, as well as a Masters in Public Administration. He is currently working on his dissertation for a Ph.D. in educational administration. Presently, he is serving on the Planning, Evaluation, and Allocations Committee and the Manpower Assistance Committee of United Way; the Downtown Council of the Chamber of Commerce; and the board of St. Stephen's Community House. Miller's past community work includes serving as president of the South Linden Business Association, and being a member of the city's Community Development Taskforce, and the mayor's I-670 Economic Committee.

Miller is also a member of Omega Psi Phi fraternity, Columbus Gursillo, the Ala Baba Temple Shrine, and the Merry Makers, Inc.

He is married to the former Gloria Younger, a contract negotiator with the Battelle Memorial Institute, and they have a daughter, Nicole, 10, a student at Central College Elementary School in Westerville. His older children are Yolanda, Jacqueline, Walter, Michael, and Robin.

State Accepting Bids For Sports Facility At Miami University

Richard W. Siehl, deputy director of the Ohio Department of Administrative Services, said today the state is accepting bids for the $13.5 million physical education, recreation and athletic facility to be constructed at Miami University in Oxford.

The physical education facilities, including a 26,000-seat football stadium, will be located north of Millett Hall. The stadium will become part of a sports complex to include playing fields for women's hockey and softball and a new all-weather track.

The complex will include a new building to house locker and shower rooms for men and women varsity athletes, training area, instruction, first aid and equipment rooms and officials' locker and shower rooms. Two soccer fields are now in use at the site. Siehl said that bids will be opened Jan. 28 for five

McLin Pushes For Prisons To Be Built In Cities

State Rep. C.J. McLin Jr. (D-Dayton), claims credit for having helped to convince the law and justice committee of the National Conference on State Legislatures to pass a resolution urging that prisons should be located in urban areas.

The resolution was passed during the organization's State-Federal Assembly, held in Washington, D.C., Dec. 9-11.

McLin, a member of the Senate-House conference committee on Ohio House Bill 530, a prison construction proposal, favors locating state correctional facilities within urban areas "where minority employees and community resources are available."

One of the main issues in the conference committee debates has been whether new prisons should be in rural or urban areas. Construction of new penal facilities in Cleveland and Dayton, reconstruction of the Columbus Correctional Facility (formerly the Ohio Penitentiary), and the building of pre-release centers in Cincinnati and Cleveland are under consideration by the legislators.

McLin is hopeful that the pro-urban construction stand of the NCSL will give impetus to supporters of plans to bring the institutions closer to the home areas and social environment of the inmates.

The NCSL resolution read, in part: "Officials at all levels of government (should) elicit more support for the location of correctional facilities within urban centers."

"If Ohio follows the recommendation of NCSL to locate prisons in urban areas, we will be taking positive steps to prevent another Lucasville," McLin said.

Santa (Woody Hayes) Came Early For Councilman Elect

As many looked forward to opening the gifts old Santa left under the tree, a new public figure in Columbus got his present early in the form of a seat on City Council.

Councilman-elect Ben Espy takes office Dec. 31 for a four-year term. That's ordinary, but the aftermath of his victory makes for the stuff that Christmas is made of.

Many were so surprised and stunned, they didn't properly want to concede that Espy had won. No, Santa didn't bring that, many seem to believe. Why, such an elaborate gift for someone who was not one of the bright, out-front faces in the campaign?

Well, Santa is full of surprises, so why not concede Espy the great win that he pulled off. Part of the win has been credited to former Ohio State Head Football Coach Woody Hayes.

Hayes made a last minute appearance in a television commercial for voters to support Espy. Espy finished second among the six candidates, but said the other night on a TV program that he would have finished at least third even without Hayes endorsement, although he acknowledged being truly appreciative of it.

What's ahead for Ben Espy and the City of Columbus as a result of his being elected to council is open to speculation, but certainly there remains a system of checks and balances at City Hall with Democrats in control of council, 4-3, and a Republican doing the duties of mayor.

And no, ho, ho, one of those Democrats is Ben Espy, the candidate who believed he could win when prior to the election few others thought him realistic.

Yes, Virginia, Ben Espy did win.

Bill Moss Bids Farewell To Board Of Education

The times, they are a-changing. Another four years are behind us, along with another year, and that signals the end of Bill Moss's term on the Columbus Board of Education.

And regardless what the opinion was of Moss, no one can deny that he didn't stand up for what he believed in, even when he had to do it alone, even when it caused more frustration than the "doing what's right" that he hoped for from other board members and the public.

But Bill Moss endured. And he can leave the board a proud black man for knowing that he didn't take the easy way out, but held firm to his convictions, convictions shared by many in the black community.

Moss has been a thorn in the side of numerous community figures and institutions, while acting as a free thinker who opened a lot of people's minds about the operations of the school board.

Moss articulated the views of those persons in the black community who are opposed to school busing to achieve school desegregation. And considering the turn around with busing during the Reagan administration—in addition to the questionable results showing in research on the affects of busing for black children—more people may begin to think that maybe Moss was not so far from the realities of this country even if that didn't jibe with the most recent thinking of the Supreme Court.

Leaving the school board with Moss are Virginia Prentice and William Bonner.

U.N.C.F. "The Mind Is A Terrible Thing To Waste"

As America continues to get caught up in pseudonyms, UNCF (United Negro College Fund) certainly is being adopted as an abbreviation with some meaning. The United Negro College Fund is certainly one of the charitable undertakings that should be seriously considered at this time of year.

UNCF needs no introduction to our readers but perhaps simply a reaffirmation of its work. Dollars are critical to this agency which undertakes a simple task which has great significance. It simply solicits funds from people, corporations, foundations and others, spends a relatively small amount for administration and then divides the pie and distributes it to the predominately black colleges in America.

Reaganomics has inflicted serious wounds on the black college establishment. In addition to cuts in programs such as the developing institutions program that was undertaken to assist small private institutions, the administration has decreed further budget cuts and more stringent requirements for students to receive student aid whether in the form of student loans or Basic Opportunity Grants. Things are so fouled up in Washington, that we cannot get direct answers on what funding levels will be made available for Basic Opportunity Grants and student loans. We do get the rhetoric that it is necessary to cut these programs to help balance the budget.

This is particularly tragic when we look at Rust College, a predominately black college in Mississippi where 98% of the student body is supported by some form of federal assistance either in the form of Basic Opportunity Grants (BOG), student loans or student work programs.

We sincerely call upon all persons to dig deep in support of the UNCF. We know of no other agency that can really put the dollars where they are needed. The UNCF in Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Toledo and other cities will be conducting radio-thons, direct appeals and will take other measures to solicit the needed funds to keep the black colleges and universities open.

The Truth About Drugs

By ALEXANDER R. JONES
Associate Dir., Church of Scientology Nat. Commission Law Enforcement Social Justice

A man sips a cup of coffee to perk himself up and get started for the day. A housewife takes a valium to calm her nerves. A bored student lights up a joint between classes to get in the groove. A heroin addict shoots up to drown the pain of lost dreams and a life gone awry. These substances, from coffee to heroin, all have some key things in common. They are taken internally, they remove the person from an unwanted condition, and they upset the body's natural chemistry. In other words, they are all drugs.

This and other facts are clearly explained in a new book, "The Truth About Drugs: The Body, Mind and You." If you've ever wondered about the effects of drugs on the body and the mind, or why we have such a serious drug problem in the U.S., this book is an excellent place to start looking for the answers.

Written by Gene Chill and John Duff, a former heroin addict, "The Truth About Drugs" presents the hard facts, many of them

Open Communication And Togetherness Are Prerequisites For Victory In 1982

By BURMA L. STEVENS

If you are one of the persons who felt the bittersweet joys of the Holiday season and shivered with fearful trepidation of facing the New Year, you are not alone.

Countless others, unfortunately the majority of Blacks, poor whites and other neglected minorities are trembling with doubts about their abilities to make it through another tough, often callous and economically-deprived year.

Throughout 1981, it often appeared that when one victory was won, 10 were added to the survival-obstacle course. Reflecting upon this continuous and difficult battle of losses and gains of minorities in 1981 were many fine journalists.

At the top of this list was the late publisher of The CALL and POST, William O. Walker, author of "Down The Big Road." Through this column and his zealous editorials, Mr. Walker developed strategy for survival and economic recovery for Blacks. He called for togetherness and victory through voting, election of Black officials, quality education, Black support of Black businesses, hard work and common sense. In his "The Challenge Of Change" he pointedly stated, "People don't ask for facts in making up their minds. They would rather have one good soul-satisfying emotion than a dozen facts."

Mr. Walker praised when praise was due, and his tongue-lashings were severe and without question, correct. But he never used words haphazardly, for he knew they reflected a thought that may lead to an action. It was his hope that Blacks would use their minds to full potential and develop their thoughts into constructive action.

Following this relevant tradition have been contributors to "Guest Columnist," which has been substituted for "Down The Big Road." These writers have many varied careers but all have one objective in common, they are dedicated to the causes of Blacks and other minorities.

Cynthia Simpson, a Case Western Reserve University student and CALL and POST intern, wrote about the apathetic plight of prisoners in penal institutions. Litchford Jones, CALL and POST police reporter, wrote about the often puzzling and one-sided legal system.

Discussing the problems facing Blacks of all strata were Dr. Julian Earls, Chief of the Office of Environmental Health at NASA and Harold Ferguson, Deputy Director of the Regional Equal Opportunity Commission Office. Another analytical column that suggested answers for many problems facing Blacks was written by Booker Tall, Administrative Assistant to Mayor George V. Voinovich.

Norman Hill, president of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, contributed an article on the

David Stockman issue. During the Holy season of Christmas, The Rev. Dr. R.L. Fuller, Pastor of Mt. Hermon Baptist Church, wrote a Christmas Meditation called, "The Heavenly Broadcast of Our Saviour's Birth."

From novice to professional, many dedicated individuals have shared their writings with the public because they realize the importance of communication as a tool to overcome racial and economic inequities.

In any battle communication is imperative. One of the first lines of offense for any oppressive group is to cut the lines of communication, as recently demonstrated in Poland. A more ancient lesson was vividly revealed in the Biblical story of The Tower Of Babel. When the people lost their means to communicate with each other, there was confusion and the disorganization. Open media communication and togetherness are prerequisites for victory.

Appropos for 1982 is Mr. Walker's closing statement in his "The Second Year Of The Eighties." 1982 "doesn't have to be the beginning of a period of doom for Blacks. Perhaps necessity will force us to close ranks, minimize ideological and political differences, organize and use our assets, and improve intra-racial communications. If this does happen, then there will be nothing for us to fear in the Eighties."

"Reflections"

By BILL WOLFE

Servitude by one definition means, submission to a master or in a less literal sense, subjection to any person, economic system or vice. Granted, slavery or human bondage was abolished in 1865. Unfortunately, slavery of the mind still exists and the implications in the black world are enormous.

The largest culprit, precipitated by what we might term a "submission of the mind syndrome," is television. Television shows us utter luxury right in our modest living-rooms; a world beyond ours and one that demonstrates very graphically, the vacuum of the lives we live. Even more disastrous is the implied connotation that acceptance and indeed success is based on material possessions.

Mr. Floodwater was a department store tycoon in Harlem and his recorded wealth was tremendous. Each morning he'd arrive at his headquarters in a chauffeur driven limousine that was a block long and had solid gold bumpers and door handles. To say he was the epitome of success would be putting it lightly.

Each morning, like clockwork, a doorman would rush to open his boss's car door amid throngs of eager children and adults shouting praise and clapping their hands because they knew the man in the car would throw out several handfuls of coins before entering the building. It was a ritual and this morning was no exception.

The big man got out of his car and as always, he had a constant frown on his face. He had all the money anyone could want but he was one of the unhappiest men in the world. Anyway, after leaving his car and throwing out the bagful of coins and watching the crowd disperse, he stood back to admire his building and again, for as long as he could remember, he felt tormented. Then he turned to face his tormentor.

Directly across the street from his empire was a little hot dog stand run by a little old man. The handmade sign, hanging from one nail, read, "Ray's Hot Dogs" and the little old man was Ray. He lived behind the little shop and his room, like his profits, was meager.

Unlike his business friend across the street, Ray was happy and always singing. This puzzled the department store tycoon because he could not understand how someone with so little could be so happy and how a person like himself with so much could be so unhappy.

Each morning he would look at Ray, his tormentor, and each morning Ray would tip his hat and continue to sing, but this morning the tycoon had an idea. He would make that old man stop singing if it was the last thing he'd do.

Entering the building he instructed the doorman to tell the hot dog man to come by and visit him. The doorman did as he was told. When Ray entered the building, he was astonished. The entire building shown like glass and the solid white carpet completely covered his feet. The receptionist greeted him with, "Oh, so nice to see you Mr. Ray. We've been expecting you. Please let me take your coat." Ray was dumbfounded. Then a loudspeaker blared out, "Ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Ray is in our office and we will show him every courtesy." Ray felt ten feet tall.

Before he entered the elevator to the top floor, a ten minute ride, he was approached by a young lady offering him his choice of cigars. Entering the elevator he felt twelve feet tall and at each floor he grew more. By the time he reached the penthouse, his back was straight, head in the clouds and he felt very distinguished.

Sitting around the office were business executives in three-piece suits. He had decided to take a seat and wait when the secretary said, "Oh no, Mr. Ray. You're to go right in." Passing the others waiting to see Mr. Floodwater, he knew he was in heaven.

The tycoon started, "Hi Ray, it's good to see you," as they shook hands. "Listen, I figured since we are business neighbors, I figured you can help me and I can help you. His smile was deliberate. Ray was enthralled by the crystal chandeliers, paintings, surely the envy of any museum and the luxurious furniture enveloped his entire body.

Ray thought to himself, "Man this is living!" The tycoon continued, "...and so Ray, I want you to supply my staff with hot dogs and polish boys twice a week for a month and I'll add a bonus for your services. As he was escorted out, his mouth was still on the floor. He had never heard of so much money. The same thing happened when he went down on the elevator thinking, "What a way to live."

Crossing the street he saw his little shack with his sign hanging and cracked windows. For the first time in a long time, he felt depressed. The next morning after the tycoon had distributed the ritual coins, he strained his ears listening for his singing tormentor. He heard no singing. He looked but Ray didn't tip his hat. Entering the door to his office he was overheard saying, "Oh what a beautiful day!" and he was smiling and happy.

This was a story that mirrors reality. How many people not only flaunt their wealth and success but do not feel secure unless they are rubbing your face in your failure and deprivation. Oh what a high price society pays for the hate this kind of conduct produces.

Season Of Joy: Season Of Farewell

Everybody loves Christmas, the season of good tidings to all. This season celebrates the ideas of human dignity, brotherhood and compassion, ideas in short supply in an uncaring world.

All the more reason then, why we should seize on this Holiday season to give new life to those ideas, and to rededicate ourselves to the struggle to attain them.

Christmas is a time when all of us have to reject racism in all of its forms, loudly and clearly. For nothing could be further from the Christmas spirit than the ugly notion that race is reason enough to make some people dominate others; to make some people reap the rewards of our society over others, to make some people think they are better than others.

Unfortunately, racism is still strong, although many of us don't recognize it unless confronted by its ugliest forms such as Klan or Nazi goons. The three-piece-suit variety though, is even more dangerous.

Take the recent story about opposition to the sale of a Park Avenue cooperative apartment to the New York Public Library, which wants it as a residence for its president, a white male.

The sale was fought by a director of the building, an affluent lawyer who was quoted as saying:

"The way things are going these days it's very likely that the president of the library could be a member of a minority group. And no matter how we feel about it, we've got to protect our investments. With a member of a minority group living in the building the value would go down..."

Just the possibility that some day in the future a minority might be appointed to that prestigious job makes an affluent lawyer talk like an ignorant segregationist.

I doubt if he'd change his mind even if he was presented with the fact that minority ownership does not affect property values, for his statement reveals a mindset that resists the rights of black people.

It is another piece of evidence that in our society even status and wealth will not protect minorities from racism and discrimination. It is another indication that brotherhood and human dignity should not be confined to seasonal rhetoric at Christmastime.

So fighting racism remains a major task for the civil rights agencies—and for all of us. Although I am resigning the presidency of the National Urban League, I will continue to fight for equal opportunities and an end to racism as a private citizen.

And the Urban League will continue to fight for it under the new and able leadership of my successor, John Jacob. He is an outstanding choice for the job; an articulate spokesman, an imaginative programmer, and a tough executive.

Resigning the leadership of the Urban League also means giving up this column. John Jacob will take over the task of writing these weekly observations on current affairs.

For the past ten years, I have enjoyed sharing my thoughts with you. I've pleased many, and angered others. But it has been gratifying to me that the response to this column has been so favorable.

Even those readers moved to write in-disagreement usually did so on the basis of honest differences on the issues, understanding that the real meaning of democracy is revealed in the exchange of ideas and in the willingness to entertain divergent viewpoints.

I never thought I could convert everyone's aim in this column was to try to start people thinking about fairness, about what is right. My aim was to get behind the daily run of news stories to spotlight some crucial issues for black people, minorities and all of America's disadvantaged and explain how they are affected by public policies.

I leave this column then, with thanks to the fine newspapers that have given me this forum and with feelings of fondness for you, the readers. To all of you, my very best wishes for a merry Christmas, and a happy New Year.

total community reacted favorably also. It was like saying, "Look, it can happen here," he said.

Rosemond has had the added satisfaction of seeing three blacks elected to council since his 1969 victory. Jim Roseboro and Jerry Hammond served with Rosemond as councilmen. Ben Espy was elected this past November to fill the seat Rosemond no longer holds.

It might have been more advantageous for Rosemond to bask in the glory of his historic council victory and use it as a springboard to higher political ventures. But Rosemond's commitment to the community overshadowed his election. He was reelected in 1973 and 1977 and served as President Pro Temp of the Council. He was chairman of the Public Service Committee and Airport Committee of council as well as a member of the Columbus Airport Commission. He also was the Columbus Board of Health representative for council.

Rosemond made two unsuccessful bids for local political offices other than council. He ran for Franklin County Coroner and for mayor.

When reflecting back on the 1975 election for mayor, Rosemond said he was more disappointed for the community than himself when he lost. It was the first time in the history of the city that a black had been nominated for mayor.

Rosemond won the Democratic nomination by picking up approximately 70 percent of the black vote. More than 90 percent of Columbus' black voters were registered Democrats in 1975.

"Since I was not elected I think that it was somewhat of a let down for the black community. But still it was a positive thing overall," he said.

He added that his retirement from council doesn't mean he is giving up politics altogether. He said that because he was doing so many things he had become less effective.

Rosemond said that at first it will feel different to be back in civilian life. He said, however, his medical practice will keep him more than busy (his schedule includes visiting two hospitals a day).

Dr. Rosemond is married to the former Rosalie Edge who has been a school teacher but is now a homemaker and prominent civic worker. The Rosemonds are the parents of three children, Dr. John Jr., currently a resident physician at the Tripler General Hospital, Honolulu, Hawaii; Janith, a nurse-teacher in New York City; and Ronald, a graduate of the Columbus Technical Institute, now deceased.

The dedicated physician has never been too busy to share his talents with the church. He serves as an elder in the Bethany Presbyterian Church.

His numerous awards include: Family Physician of the year by the Ohio Academy of Family Physicians in 1974; Distinguished Service Award by Howard University College of Medicine in 1980; and General Practitioner of the year by the National Medical Association in 1970. He was also named National Omega Man of the year in 1970 by Omega Psi Phi Fraternity.

In his political life, Rosemond described himself as a person who analyzed the total picture. He said that while on council he strived to make sure that each sector of the community got its fair or equal share of attention.

"My political style is one of being more to the point. It's not one of posturing and rhetoric; it's one of trying to look through the whole maze and getting to the meat of the problem," he said.

Whether it be adding street lights to a depressed area or introducing major civil rights legislation, Rosemond maintained his determined political style. The measurement of his success can be seen in the city's growth since he's been in council.

Although he does not take all the credit, Rosemond said he was especially pleased to see the success of the Mt. Vernon Plaza, the improvements to the Columbus International Airport, the building of the Ohio Center and the various projects that have seen the city move forward while others were faltering.

Rosemond said that what is needed now is a replenishing of black leadership in the community. He said he was glad that Ben Espy was elected to follow in his foot steps and that his advice to him would be "to look at the total picture."

papers, considerations of the foundation's development policy and implementation of current plans and projects.

Blatcher said that the complete report of the self study will be forwarded to the National Endowment for the Humanities. The report will also serve as a basic document for the foundation's 1982 plan of operation which includes the foundation's first display of minority military history (scheduled during Black History Month), a nation wide fund raising drive, production of a documentary film and the collection of artifacts and memorabilia for the museum.

The intellectual stimulation from the conference was highly encouraging according to Dr. Althea Williams, Ethnic Affairs Curator of the Oakland Museum, who cited the project as "...long over due, and of vital importance to our nation's cultural development."

Support for the proposed museum from active military community was evidenced by such offers of assistance as one made by Captain M. Osborne, commanding officer of the Treasure Island Naval Station. Captain Osborne is arranging for the foundation to use some storage space at the San Francisco Bay facility.

In the meantime, the foundation is negotiating with the City of Oakland, seeking to acquire a building to be used as temporary headquarters for its various activities. Blatcher indicated that some corporate support for maintaining such a facility was in the offering.

Following the conference, a reception was held at the Oakland Museum, where the visiting scholars were introduced to the representatives of the bay area minority communities; veterans organizations and the military establishment.

The Oakland City Council joined Mayor Lionel Wilson in presenting the five historians with honorary citizenship in the City of Oakland.

COLUMBUS CLOSE-UP

Haitian Detention Is Racist Policy To Keep Blacks Out

By TED OSHODI
By golly, the problem of 3,000 Haitian refugees being held in detention camps throughout the United States is, indeed, a demonstration of a racist and unfair immigration policy—a policy that is tainted with the syndrome: "minimize black, and maximize white, and/or yellow population."

You may not know this. Several third world nationals and blacks from other countries have traditionally been facing this kind of an immigration problem in this country.

The European whites rarely encounter this kind of a problem. They don't have this problem because of the "maximization" of white population drive, which is implicit in the immigration policy.

The plight of the Haitian refugees does not bother me as much as the ways in which some blacks in

TED OSHODI

Columbus responded to the recent clarion call for the refugees' assistance.

When concerned and dedicated Haitian national, a U.S. resident, Marie-Maude Valbrun came to Columbus recently, from the Cuban-Haitian Ministries of Miami, Florida, the reception given to her was cordial, brotherly and sisterly.

But there was one thing lacking. And that was wholehearted concern and support for the Haitian refugees, and how they could be helped through sponsorship for residence in the United States.

And there were feelings around town like this: "The economic situation of black America is so bad that Haitian refugee problem is minor to us. And the blacks here are oppressed so much that they don't realize and understand how to sponsor Haitian refugees. In this regard, I am not ignoring those individuals who made some efforts to help deal with the Haitian situation through a special task force, here in Columbus. They are a breed apart.

Ms. Valbrun's call to protest the Reagan administration treatment of Haitians is for a worthy cause. It is worthy because Ms. Valbrun is convinced that the Haitians are being treated unfairly—in comparison with the Cambodians, the Vietnamese, the Laotians, and the Philippines, who were shipped from their troubled countries to this country at the mercy of the Immigration. These people are mongoloids, and Europeans, such as the Russians, the Polish, the Yugoslavians, and many more, who are in this country because of either economic hard times, or political problems in their countries.

In effect, Columbus' black community should not let the question of identity, or ambivalence about their heritage deter them from supporting and helping those Haitians whose ancestry is also in black Africa.

I am sick and disappointed to the marrow when I hear black Americans ask their counterparts from other countries: "How do you people view us here?"

The problem of the Haitians should be the problem of every black person regardless of national origin. After all, blacks belong to the same continental origin, and that is, Africa. Where do you belong? America is the land of opportunity for everyone. It has been a land of promise to immigrants from nearly every nation in the world. Big, young, and rich in resources, the area which now comprises the U.S.

can look back only 370 years to the establishment of the first English colony in Jamestown, Virginia, and can count up to 200 years as an independent nation.

So, the plight of foreign black refugees should be the palaver of all blacks in America. You remember that the Jews, who came from all over the world are very clannish, and that they help each other like crazy. And that's what it should be among blacks. It's up to you all...

*Note: Look out for a piece on job discrimination problems in Columbus, especially with regard to how some fast food restaurants treat minorities.

FIRST LADIES OF COLUMBUS CHURCHES

The 'Call' Of The Pastor Implies Obedience Of The Call For Mate

(Editor's Note: This is the ninth of a series of articles focusing on the wives of pastors of black churches in Columbus.)

By JANICE D. HAMLEY

When a pastor's wife has accepted her role as a mate for "God's Man," she must also be mindful that if she is going to share the life of one who has been 'called' by God for a specific work this also places upon her the obedience of the call. Therefore the call of the pastor inevitably means the call of the pastor's wife as well.

This is not to say that she should feel compelled to preach the gospel or run the church but means she should complement her husband's ministry. She does this by simply being a good exemplary member of the congregation. In doing so she pays her husband the highest compliment she can give him.

There is a distinct role played by the wife of a pastor. Much honor and responsibility is given to it. The congregation takes many cues from her. Her every act is watched by friend and foe in the congregation.

Mrs. Margaret Clark, first lady of Maynard Avenue Baptist Church and president of the Interdenominational Minister's Wives Association said it best.

"The pastor's wife has her fingertips on the pulse of the congregation."

A pastor's wife wears many hats. She may work in many different areas of the church or wherever her talents are needed. Many of them hold high-level positions while others prefer to work behind the scenes. The ladies in this series represent a wide range of responsibilities.

Mrs. Lucy Wilbur, first lady of Wayne Avenue Church of God, 116 Wayne Ave. is choir director.

Mrs. Shirlean Washington, first lady of Mt. Herman Baptist Church, 1132 Windsor Ave. teaches Bible school and sings in the choir.

The first lady of Apostolic Christian Church of Christ, 735 E. Gates St., is Mrs. Ruby Dennis. Her responsibilities are numerous. She directs the adult choir, is president of the usher board, Sunday school superintendent and director of Christian education.

Mrs. Annie Dix, first lady of Centenary United Methodist Church, 930 E. Long St. is chairperson of the church's housing committee.

Mrs. Kathy Conley, first lady of Watkins Road Church of Christ, 1614 Watkins Road is choir director and a Sunday school teacher.

First lady, Mrs. Marilyn Bowens of New Bethlehem Baptist Church, 781 St. Clair, sings in the choir and is a deaconess.

The first lady of Bible Way Church of Our Lord Jesus Christ, 435 S. Wheatland Ave. is Mrs. Lelia Latta. She is Sunday school superintendent, missionary society advisor and family life teacher.

Mrs. Erlene Shavers, first lady of Philippi Baptist Church, 240 West St., Pastaskala, Ohio serves as usher board president and Sunday school teacher.

Mrs. Omanda Thrower, first lady of Mt. Zion Baptist, 1535 Dewey Ave. is a group captain of the Baptist Training Union and supervises a missionary circle.

First lady, Mrs. Esther Hopkins of The First Church of God and Saints of Christ, 1265 Hildreth St. is Sunday school superintendent and a church trustee.

Mrs. Doris Brown, first lady of Ebenezer Baptist Church, 53 N. Ohio Ave., is director of music, president of a missionary circle and church organist.

The first lady of Upper Room Church of God, Inc., 478 Kelton St. is the assistant pastor. She is the Rev. Marian L. Wooden.

Some of these ladies are also career women in the areas of education, medicine, social science and business.

Most of these ladies are homemakers and they should be applauded because the art of homemaking is the finest of all fine arts.

No longer is the pastor's wife a shadow behind the pastor. She has emerged as a leader in her own right.

The role and responsibilities of the pastor's wife are not dissimilar from one pastor's wife to another. Regardless of the denomination, each one faces the same basic challenges, problems and encounters that have a definite bearing upon the total ministry of her husband.

She sets the tone of the congregation. Her speech, dress, mannerism and activities all effect the success or failure of the pastor's ministry.

Whether she likes the title or not, she is indeed the 'first lady'. May she grow and prosper in spirit, grace, wisdom and love and may it reflect upon others.

On The Beach For '82 Exotics, Optics, Glitter, Brights

Just when you wonder what could possibly be new for another season in swimwear, designers come up with fresh looks, colors and prints with more drama and eye appeal than before. Swimwear for '82 cruise and resort is more innovative than ever.

Expect to see brilliant colors, lots of glitter, ruffles and flounces; more tank and plunge and surplice maillots, and more fashionable bikinis. Look for nautical stripes and Americana, optical and exotic prints and stripes. Accessory news includes big tops, wide shirts, voluminous harem or jodhpur pants and the glamour bomber or basic zip-front jacket.

New fabrics of "Antron" nylon and "Lycra" spandex with surface bubbles, puckers, and dots are appearing in warp knit trikots and raschels, as well as new woven constructions. Also popular are circular knits with the look and feel of cotton, though they have the fortunate functional advantage of being cotton blends with "Dacron" polyester and "Lycra". Many of these for the first time are sparked with the glitter of gold or silver threads to capture the metallic popularity.

Though many of the new prints have a definite optic or graphic direction with zig-zags, teardrops, Aztec motifs, polka dots, lines and squares, others look to the Far East and the islands. Oriental motifs, Chinese folklore, tropical or exotic flora and fauna abound. Animal prints, especially in the junior lines and young looks, should have a heyday.

There is certainly enough that is new in stylings to send every woman off to add to her swimwear wardrobe.

Classes For Parents To Begin January 13

The Department of Community Service Youth Service Bureau, 1260 E. Broad St., is sponsoring a Parent Effectiveness Training Class that is designed to help parents improve their relationships with their children.

The design for the 10 week class is two-fold: The first five weeks deals with communicating with children, and the last five weeks are devoted to helping parents deal with discipline problems.

In the past, this course has been well attended and parents have found this informal class to be friendly, informative and enjoyable. A recognition ceremony, including presentation of certificates, is held for those who attend six or more sessions.

Clifford A. Tyree, administrator of the Youth Service Bureau, urges parents to take advantage of this opportunity to learn new parenting skills, to meet and share with other parents and to enjoy refreshments and conversation in an informal setting.

The 1982 Winter Parent Effectiveness Training Class will begin Wednesday, Jan. 13, and will be held at the Youth Service Bureau, 1260 East Broad, from 7:00-9:00 p.m.

It will meet every Wednesday evening through March 17. Refreshments will be served. Please call 222-7500 to register for class.

Lauch Henry helped find the missing ingredient to educate minority engineers. Money.

Lauchland Henry is a teacher. And a scientist. And an engineer. He's genuinely concerned about other people. And he has expressed some of that concern in his participation with the National Fund for Minority Engineering Students.

The fund is a nonprofit organization for awarding to increase the number of Blacks, Hispanics, Chicanos, Mexican-Americans and American Indians enrolled in engineering schools. These underrepresented minorities constitute a rich untapped resource to help fill the growing need for engineers as a result that is expected to continue through the mid 1980's.

IBM is a social responsibility program created by Henry to take a year's time to assist the fund. And IBM continued to play its part.

The National Fund for Minority Engineering Students - a very worthwhile program. We think so. Lauchland Henry thinks so. But most important of all, lots of minority engineering students enrolled at colleges and universities all over the country think so.

Loss Of Training Unit At Karamu Spurred Creation Of Pro Company

By WILLIAM R. WOOD

The sudden termination of the CETA funded training program at Karamu was one of the main factors that spurred the creation of the theatre's new Professional Company. Karamu is now in the process of gaining full union status for the company with Actors Equity.

According to Mike Malone, Performing Arts

Director, plans for a professional company had to be sped up when it was discovered that CETA funds would no longer be available for Karamu's Professional Training Unit. Now members of the training unit can work in the Professional Company because a healthy ratio of non-equity actors is needed for the theatre company to develop Actors Equity union status.

The real phenomenon is that even without professional status, Karamu, a community theatre has made national impact with many productions. Presently The Karamu Company is one of the few black companies in the nation turning professional, and when it does it may be the only black professional performing arts company in the country outside of New York.

certain "approval procedures" to attain Equity status and this type of contract is the type used in the beginning stages.

Presently as many or as few equity performers desired can be used for productions. Malone hopes to soon have an "equity letter of agreement" arrangement which is closer to full union status.

Four equity performers for a cast of eleven were chosen for "Raisin In The Sun": Minnie Gentry, Tamu, Dennis Reid, and Tony Chisholm. Tamu, a popular face on television and has appeared in episodes of "Maude," "Goodtimes" and several other programs. Minnie Gentry appeared in the movie "Claudine" and the Broadway hit "Ain't Supposed To Die A Natural Death."

Others cast for the play include Diane Weaver, Sir Robert Lumpkin, Jeff Bivens, Nate Acree, Victor Karp, Bruce Dunn, and Keith Smith.

Malone said the process of achieving Equity status will give the former professional training unit members an enriching experience and tremendous working exposure with equity performers. He hopes to eventually have a company at Karamu with a nucleus of equity actors that are Clevelanders as well.

The contract used with the equity performers in "Raisin In The Sun" is a "guest artist contract." Malone explained that the theatre must go through

Bengals vs. Tampa Possibility Rekindles 1971 Griffin/Brown High School Rivalry

By HIRAM TANNER
(COLUMBUS BUREAU)

If the Cincinnati Bengals and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers reach the Super Bowl at Pontiac, Michigan on Jan. 24, it will set up a rematch between two of Eastmoor high school's most famous football players and one of Linden McKinley's most celebrated all-around athletes.

In the first city league high school football league playoff game between the Warriors and the Panthers on Nov. 13, 1971, the Griffin brothers, Archie and Ray, (now with the Bengals) led Eastmoor to a 20-9 victory over Linden.

Archie rolled up 260 yards on 31 carries and scored three touchdowns. Ray scored the first touchdown of the game for Eastmoor and quarterback Mark Kraker the second one. After trailing Eastmoor 14-0 at halftime, the Panthers came back to score early in the third quarter on a 31 yard field goal by Chuck Wooten. Led by the running and passing of quarterback Cedric Brown, (now defensive back with Tampa Bay) Linden scored again in the fourth quarter on a 14-yard touchdown pass from Brown to Kim Mix. Will the Warriors and the Panthers tangle again as pro athletes in the Super Bowl? If not, all three young men have had outstanding careers in college and with their respective pro teams.

Cedric Brown of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers is one of the most underrated defensive backs in the National Football League. This is his fifth year with the Buccaneers. No defensive back stays around that long if he isn't producing.

After graduating from Linden, Brown was an outstanding defensive back at Kent State for four years. His name is still on the record books at Kent State and the Mid-American Conference for a season and career. Another teammate of Brown on the Buccaneers is Neal Colzie. Colzie was an All-American defensive back for Ohio State and for many years was an outstanding defensive back with the Oakland Raiders along with Jack Tatum. Colzie and Brown have been very valuable to the Buccaneers in their drive for the Super Bowl. The Griffin brothers are well known. Archie is the only college player ever to win two Heisman Trophies, three-time All-American and holds numerous Ohio State, Big Ten and NCAA records. Brother Ray has been with the Bengals since 1978. He, too, won All-American honors while playing with Ohio State. He was the Bengals' second round draft choice.

There are several other well known players to Ohio fans with the Bengals. Heading this list is fullback Pete Johnson, who holds Ohio State and Big Ten records in scoring 58 touchdowns. Pete has rushed over 1,000 yards this season to become the Bengals all time career leading rusher with over 3100 yards. Another hometown athlete with the Bengals is M.L. Harris. Harris was an outstanding basketball and football player at North high school. He played his college football at TampaU and Kansas State. He later played four years in the Canadian Football League, three with Hamilton and one with Toronto under Forrest Gregg, the present coach of the Bengals.

One of the toughest linemen in the NFL is Gary Burley, formerly of Urbancrest. Burley played his high school football at Grove City and was an All-American guard at the University of Pittsburgh before joining the Bengals in 1975.

Basketball fans will remember Mike St. Clair playing with Cleveland East Tech state championship teams in 1972 along with Larry Bolden and Bob Lucas. The latter two athletes played on Ohio State's basketball team. St. Clair has contributed much to the Bengals' improved defense.

The National Football League playoff series will continue on Sat., Jan. 2 with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers playing the Dallas Cowboys at 1 p.m. On the same day at 3 p.m. the San Diego Chargers will play the Miami Dolphins. On Sunday, Jan. 3, the Buffalo Bills, 31-27 winners over the New York Jets last week, will play the Cincinnati Bengals at 1 p.m. Out on the west coast the San Francisco 49ers will entertain the New York Giants at 5 p.m. The Giants upset the Philadelphia Eagles 27-21 to win the NFC wild card playoff game.

Butler And Buckeye Basketball Usher In New Year As Pre-Season Comes To End

By FELIX HOOVER

Bulldogs and Orange-men will play the final pre-season competition for the Men's Basketball Team at Ohio State.

Saturday's date with Butler and the Tuesday outing against Syracuse are the middle matches in a six-game home stand at St. John Arena. The pair of games in the set took place against Florida and Washington State; the other two will be the league openers against Minnesota and Wisconsin. Butler, which finished last in the Midwestern City Conference a year ago, has been tabbed to repeat in the cellar in a league which also includes Xavier, Evansville, Oklahoma City, Oral Roberts, Loyola of Chicago and Detroit.

When the Orange Machine of Syracuse comes to town, it will do so minus three of the major cogs in last year's model. Center Dan Schayes and guards Eddie Moss and Marty Headd-heped guide the squad to the finals of the National Invitational Tournament.

Another Syracuse trio, tri-captains Tony Bruin, Leo Rautins and Erich Santifier should earn respect from the Buckeyes. All three showed flashes of brilliance in last year's post-season charge. The Syracuse game will mark Nate Sims' return to eligibility for Ohio State. Just as he will be back in good standing, forward Joe Concheck will be lost to the team because of low grades.

Going into the Christmas break, Ohio State stood at six wins and three losses for the season. Victories were posted against McNeese State, Georgetown, Kent State, South Alabama, Princeton and Florida, while losses were suffered at the hands of Iowa, Kentucky and West Virginia.

At the time of the holiday recess, Tony Campbell was the high scorer for the team with a 13.1 point per game average. Top rebounder on the squad was Clark Kellogg, with a 9.2 per game average.

SPORTS LINES

Big Ten Teams Are Winning

CEDRIC ANDERSON

Big Ten basketball teams were winning nearly two out of each three ball games prior to the Christmas rush. Through Dec. 22, Big Ten schools have chalked up 44 wins and 24 losses. Three schools, Iowa, Indiana and Illinois, have 6-1 records. Minnesota has one loss also, but only five wins. The middle range of the Non-conference standings contains Ohio State (6-3), Wisconsin (3-2), Northwestern (4-3) and Michigan State (4-3). Purdue (3-4) and Michigan (1-5) hold down the unenviable spots in the rankings.

Capitol University is currently conducting ticket sales for its seven-game home basketball schedule. Reserved seating costs $15 or the seven home date beginning with the Jan. 3 contest against Ashland. General admission tickets may be obtained at the door for $5 per game.

Registration for the March of Dimes Annual Sno-Ball Softball Tournament has been extended to Jan. 31. The tournament which is open to any group that wants to play, will take place Jan. 16-17. Tournament information can be obtained by calling 488-5243.

COTA Announces Changes In Four Area Bus Routes

The Central Ohio Transit Authority has announced changes in four bus routes to become effective Jan. 4.

•The Number 11 Oak-Bryden route will change to reduce delays in the Downtown area.

Buses will travel west on State St. to Front St., north on Front St. to Broad St. and east on Broad St. via the regular route. The new route will eliminate direct bus service on High St. between State and Broad Streets.

Also, the bus stop at Broad and Third Streets southbound will be eliminated for the route.

•The 86 South Columbus Crosstown will provide better services to ARC Industries sheltered workshop for the handicapped on Advance Ave.

Buses will follow the regular route to Smith Rd. and Fairwood Ave., travel north on Fairwood Ave. to Moler St., east on Moler St. to Progress Ave., south on Progress Ave. to Advance Ave., west on Advance Ave. to Fairwood Ave. and south on Fairwood via the regular route.

•More people will be served as the result of changes in the 9 Leonard-Brentnell local route.

•A new express route and midday service to Westland will improve transportation in the Grove City area.

According to Richard H. Gorsuch, COTA Board President, COTA has planned a new weekday express route to downtown Columbus via I-71. The #63 Grove City Express will represent a true express using the freeway system, Gorsuch said.

New local service will include alternating trips to Westland and Downtown weekdays during midday and evening hours and Saturdays. Local buses will travel via I-270.

Passengers may obtain bus schedules in the COTA Customer Service Center and from information kiosks throughout the community.

Scholars Discuss Proposed Minority Military Museum

The National Minority Military Museum Foundation called a Veterans Day conference for the consulting historians who are participating in the development of the general theme for its proposed museum in Oakland, Calif.

The five scholars who met with the foundation's board of directors and planning council included William Leckie, Ph.D., University of Toledo; Thomas Holm, Ph.D., University of Arizona; Roberto Haro, Ph.D., and Alex Saragoza, Ph.D., University of California, Berkeley and Bernard B. Blades, Col., United States Air Force.

Each of the scholars presented a position paper which outlined the historic role of America's ethnic minorities in the armed forces.

The two day conference was organized as the culmination of a self study project which was funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities. Charles Blatcher, III, chief executive officer of the foundation, presided over the meetings which concerned discussions of the theme (Continued On Page 7A)

IF YOU'RE WORKING, YOU'RE ELIGIBLE.

A State Savings Individual Retirement Account (I.R.A.) allows you to contribute up to $2,000 a year ($4,000 for a working couple) toward your retirement. Our 18-month variable rate program pays you 6-month money market rates, compounded daily—or choose a guaranteed rate program. Interest earned on your I.R.A. is tax deferred until you retire and all contributions are tax deductible and fully insured.
